Dear parents and carers

It may have been a little chilly at times, but fortunately the weather has held off enough to allow us all to enjoy Geography fieldwork week whether near to school or slightly further afield for our older children.

Geography is one of those subjects where the best learning is combined with practical experience, so this annual week gives us the chance to focus on the essential skills of observation; map reading and creation; and field sketching – not to mention building on our knowledge from Local History Week to help us become young experts about our local area.

Every year has been out and about, from local walks in Felbridge to exploration of East Grinstead town centre and we have had lots of fun as well as learning loads! Have a look at the pictures below.

Meanwhile, there is one week to go to the FoFPS Summer Festival. As we said earlier in the week, this event will only be a success with your help – please sign up for at least one slot on a stall as well as saving the date to come and enjoy the fair with family and friends.

Finally, there's even less time to go until the Maths Information Evening. This event has been put on in response to parent requests to delve into the world of modern maths teaching, so we look forward to seeing lots of you there. Don't forget, FoFPS will be running a bar, plus we'll provide childcare – what's not to like!

Have a great weekend,

Mr Hogan-Fleming and Mrs Sims
